

Permissions Policy

History & Libraries: Thoughts from the Stacks

www.historyandlibraries.com

The content of this website is copyrighted in my name. I want to encourage the comprehensive distribution of this information while also protecting my intellectual property rights. Please see the following information regarding permissions for using my content. Thank you for your cooperation.

Without My Permission

You are free to do the following without my permission:

- Link to my site or any specific post on my site (with appropriate accreditation, i.e. Author's name).
- Extract and re-post less than 200 words on any other site, provided you link back to my original post.
- Print off my posts and photocopy up to 25 copies for internal distribution within your own company or organization.
- Print my posts in any non-commercial publication (e.g., company newsletter, church newsletter, class syllabus, etc.), provided you include this copyright notice: "© 2020, Jayme Nelson. All rights reserved. Originally published at www.historyandlibraries.com."

Not Without My Permission

You must have my express written consent to do any of the following:

- Use this content in for commercial purposes, including selling or licensing printed or digital versions of my content.
- Re-post one of my posts in their entirety (Sharing through social media is acceptable, with appropriate accreditation, i.e. Author's name).
- Alter, transform, or build upon this work.

To attain proper permissions for use of content, please contact the site administrator, Jayme Nelson, at historyandlibraries@hotmail.com.